

Timothy M. Lam

Timothy M. Lam is the executive director of The International School of Hospitality (TISOH) in Las Vegas, Nev.

Lam is a founding member of the school. Along with several University of Nevada, Las Vegas professors and hospitality industry experts from the Las Vegas Strip, he saw the need for practical, short-term training programs to help hospitality workers advance in their careers and people aspiring to enter the field.

Lam's experience includes hospitality consulting, hotel operations at Caesars Palace and marketing for a Swiss plastics company in Washington, D.C. He has co-authored numerous articles on education and hospitality. He is a certified hospitality trainer (CHT) and certified guest service professional (CGSP).

Since taking the helm at TISOH, Lam has led the school's efforts to partner with national industry associations, making inroads for students and giving employers in the industry an avenue to shape the curriculum for their future workforce. TISOH is accredited by the Accrediting Council for Continuing Education & Training (ACCET) and an academic partner of the American Hotel & Lodging Educational Institute.

Lam, who is fluent in Chinese, has worked to strengthen relationships between TISOH and major hotels and resorts locally and abroad. His efforts have resulted in a job placement rate of about 90 percent for TISOH's diploma graduates. Additionally, the school's outreach to international students has brought students to TISOH from countries such as Iceland, Indonesia, Mongolia, Spain, Nigeria, Bahamas, Panama and many others.
